

As he hangeth on þe crosse despoyled of all and sheweth to vs all his woundes þe he Be we therfore kynde/that we may suste some penaunce/ and that at the daye of d saye thus. Haue we not done penaunce i he that suffreth payne for the loue of god an hondred tymes moze rewarde / and a tayne euerlastyngelyfe/vnto the whiche you and me and all mankynde. Amen.

THere dwelled somtyme in Rome roue named Dopey/whiche had ter called Aglas. This daughter had boue all other women of that Emppye. saye & gracys in the syght of euery m also swyfte in rennyng/ that no man m her by a great space. Whan the Empero these two vertues in his daughter / he full/wherfore he made to proclayme the Emppye / that what man poore or ryche With his daughter/shold haue her to w ryches / yf he myght ouerrenue her & c marke than she / & yf she ouerrenue h to the marke than he / his heed sholde Whan the states of þe emppye/as duke and knyghtes herd this crye/they offr after an other to renne w her/but euer ouer ranne them al/wherfore they los coryng to þe lawe. That tyme there w dwellynge in Rome/whiche thought I am a poore man and come of poore make a comune crye/þe what man so
